PROJECTS

What's For Dinner? | <https://github.com/jdesgarennnes/whatsForDinner> |
<https://jdesgarennnes.github.io/whatsForDinner/>

- This site allows you to input the ingredients that you have in your fridge and search for recipes based on those ingredients. Five results show up with pictures, the title of the recipe, a Weight Watcher score, as well as the cook time. When you click on the card it will direct you to the site in which the recipe instructions can be found. One of the roles I was responsible for was the appearance of the website and together my team collaborated on how to execute the functionality for the website using Javascript.
- Tools/ languages used: JavaScript, 2 APIs(Spoonacular and Chuck Norris.io), CSS, UIKit(CSS Framework), and HTML

Weather Dashboard | <https://github.com/Krcano/Weather-Dashboard> |
<https://krcano.github.io/Weather-Dashboard/>

- The weather dashboard allows you to view the current weather of the city of your choosing and store previous searches. It shows the uv index that changes the color based on the intensity, an icon representing the weather conditions, humidity, and wind speed all in one container as well as a five day forecast
- Tools/ languages used: JavaScript, 1 API(Openweather), CSS, HTML

Atlas | <https://github.com/Krcano/Job-Tracker> |
<https://atlas-job-tracker.herokuapp.com/>

- Atlas is a web app to organize your applications to make your job hunt easier. It allows the user to store the desired job's information like the url of where you applied, the company, role, salary, and description all in one place. The user can share his experience with others through the application/hiring process as well as the work environment the experienced once hired.

- Tools/ languages used: JavaScript, Nodemailer, Express, Handlebars, MySQL, Sequelize, CSS, HTML
